						Immigration research project that has become our service learning project. This year the students have decided to donate canned goods to Hands of Hope which is mainly immigrant populated. After our research, students realized there is a real-world problem and developed a question for us to solve - how can we help immigrants overcome their challenges when coming to America? Students decided to have a lemonade stand where students can buy lemonade or donate a canned good. With the money raised they will buy additional canned items to donate. Students will help immigrants overcome their challenge in regard to not having a means to food. Students will help others in the community.
